

FAMILY COMMAND

The 15-Minute Family Care System

A simple practical toolkit to organise essential family care information in one clear place.

Quick-start guide + essential information sheets + calendar + medication and appointment tracker + weekly checklist

Welcome to Family Command

Family care can become difficult when important details live in different phones, drawers, notebooks and memories. Family Command gives you one simple structure for bringing the essentials together, without trying to organise everything at once.

The goal is not perfection. The goal is clarity: know what matters, know where it is, and make it easier for the right family members to stay informed.

How to use the 15-minute approach

- 1. Choose one category. Start with the information that would be most useful to have organised today.
- 2. Set a 15-minute timer. Fill in what you already know. Do not stop to solve every missing detail.
- 3. Mark the gaps. Put a star beside anything you need to confirm later.
- 4. Store the finished page safely. Keep this toolkit in a secure place and only share sensitive information with people you trust.
- 5. Update little and often. A short weekly review is easier than rebuilding the system months later.

Your first 15 minutes

Start with the Essential Family Information page. Add the person's basic details, key contacts, regular health providers and the most important information another trusted family member may need. Then choose the next tracker that is most relevant to your family.

Privacy note: this toolkit may contain personal or health-related information. Store completed copies securely. Family Command is an organisational resource and does not replace medical, legal, financial or emergency professional advice.

1. Essential Family Information

Use one copy for each person whose care information you help organise.

Full name
Preferred name
Date of birth
Home address
Primary phone
Email
Primary family contact
Secondary family contact
GP / primary doctor
Preferred pharmacy
Health insurer / member reference
Important notes

Key contacts

Name / service	Role	Phone	Notes

2. Family Care Calendar

Use this page to keep upcoming appointments, family tasks and care commitments visible in one place.

Date	Time	Appointment / task	Who is helping?	Status / notes

Next actions

Action	Owner	Due date	Done

3. Medication & Appointment Tracker

Record the information supplied by the person's healthcare team. Do not change medicines, doses or schedules based on this worksheet.

Medication list

Medication	Dose	When taken	Prescriber	Notes

Appointment notes

Date	Provider	Reason	Follow-up / next step

4. Weekly Family Care Checklist

A short weekly review helps keep the system useful without turning organisation into another large job.

- Review upcoming appointments for the next 7-14 days.
- Check whether any prescriptions or regular supplies need attention.
- Update the medication list if a healthcare professional has changed anything.
- Add new care notes or follow-up actions.
- Confirm who is handling important appointments or family tasks.
- File any new documents or contact details in the right place.
- Share relevant updates with trusted family members who need to know.
- Choose the single most important action for the coming week.

This week's priority

5. The Family Command Routine

Once your core information is in place, keep the system light. A practical rhythm is:

Weekly - 15 minutes: review appointments, medications, tasks and any new information.

Monthly - 15 minutes: check contact details, recurring care needs and documents that may have changed.

After an important appointment: add only the useful follow-up information and next action.

When another family member helps: share only the information they genuinely need, using a secure method.

Keep it simple

A useful Family Command is not the one with the most information. It is the one your family can understand, maintain and find when needed. Start small, keep the essentials current, and build only when it makes life easier.

Quick-start completion check
